State Presents Grand Jury Data In Murder Case

Court Continuance Gives By-Passing of Hearing; Sheppard Counsel Concur

Cleveland, Aug. 16 (AP)—The state began presenting grand jury evidence in the Sheppard murder case today after a court continuance permitted by-passing of a preliminary hearing.

Common Pleas Judge William K. Thomas continued a preliminary hearing until Wednesday at the state's request. The rescheduling was regarded as a technicality to keep alive the first degree murder warrant against Dr. Samuel H. Sheppard.

Counsel for the 30-year-old osteopath, accused of slaying his wife last July 4 in their lake-front home, entered no objection to the move.

Dressed Conservatively
Dr. Sheppard, dressed conservatively in a light grey flannel suit, was in court and listened with interest to the proceedings.

The prosecution is expected to take several days to complete presentation of its case to the grand jury.

A preliminary hearing determines whether sufficient evidence exists to hold a prisoner for grand jury action. However, in Ohio, a prosecutor may submit evidence without waiting for the preliminary hearing.

As homicide detectives continued their investigation in the July 4 murder, quarterback Otto Graham of the Cleveland Browns professional football team appeared at police headquarters yesterday with his wife.

The Grahams, friends of the Sheppards, said they knew little about the relationship existing between the osteopath and his wife.

Homicide Capt. David E. Kerr said the questioning had been purely of a routine nature and was done simply because of the friendship between the two couples.

Houk Is Questioned
Also questioned by police was Bay Village Mayor J. Spencer Houk, who was given two lie detector tests.

Police said the tests backed up Houk's denial of a suggestion by Dr. Stephen Sheppard, the accused man's brother, that the mayor might have had a romantic interest in the murdered woman.

Detective Inspector James E. McArthur said both Houk and the brother first agreed to take the lie detector tests, but Sheppard later refused on grounds that it was contrary to his lawyer's advice.

Houk will be called to appear before the grand jury, according to the prosecutor, who is (Continued on Page 11, Col. 2)

Church Parley Opens With 125,000 Present

By GEORGE CORNELL

Chicago, Aug. 16 (AP)—Chanting voices, chiming bells and air-piercing trumpets roared above 125,000 persons in Soldier Field last night, a highlight of the first day of the assembly of the World Council of Churches.

In a spectacle packed with drama and reverence, figures huddled in a pool of light raised their arms high as the hymn of "Come, Lord Jesus, Come" surged from many voices at once.

The outdoor service brought together believers of many creeds and customs in one of this country's grandest displays of Christian faith. The massive crowd, brought to Chicago by four special trains, 503 chartered busses and 9,300 automobiles from near and far places in the nation, jammed the huge stadium, and packed the entrances.

The number inside before the service began was estimated by Park District Police Chief George A. Orlowski as "more than 125,000." At the same time, an announcer said 30,000 were outside, unable to get in.

The stirring "Festival of Faith" came after the world assembly opened with a morning worship service in suburban Evanston, with the 1,500 representatives from 161 denominations in 48 countries present.

"We have learned how to study, to speak, to stand and to serve together," Bishop G. Bromley Oxnam, of Washington, one of the five council presidents, said in a sermon. "We intend to stay together." The dramatic evening service depicted in music and pageantry the creation of the earth and man, the rise of evil, the coming of Christ, His resurrection and finally, the promise of a new world. It used a cast of 4,000.

With the huge bowl of the field in darkness, a fanfare of trumpets sounded suddenly from a high parapet, and a spear of light fell on a man standing in (Continued on Page 11, Col. 5)

Group to Use All Possible 'Shortcuts', Chairman Says on McCarthy Issues

Washington, Aug. 16 (AP)—Sen. Watkins (R.-Utah) said today his special six-member committee will "take every possible shortcut" toward a report on censure charges against Sen. McCarthy (R.-Wis.) so the Senate can vote on the issue before the November election.

But Sens. Knowland (R.-Calif.) and George (D.-Ga.) agreed that unless findings are ready for Senate action by the first week in October it may be impossible to get senators to interrupt re-election campaigns to return to Washington.

Watkins, who heads the bipartisan committee studying 46 accusations that McCarthy has not conducted himself as a senator should, said in an interview he hopes the group "can have a report ready by Oct. 1."

"I am reasonably sure that we can do it," he said, "but I don't want to set any time limit because our progress will depend on the amount of cooperation we receive."

Report Before October 1
Sen. Edwin C. Johnson (D.-Colo.), the committee's vice chairman, predicted a report before Oct. 1. The Senate Democratic leadership, he said on a CBS television program last night, "wants a vote" on the censure issue.

Watkins, declaring that "we will take every possible shortcut we can," said much testimony on the charges against McCarthy may be eliminated by accepting Senate documents produced in past investigations and by permitting McCarthy to make any explanation that he cares to give. He said the three senators who made charges against McCarthy will be asked to testify only about matters of personal knowledge in support of their charges.

The three senators are Flanders (R.-Vt.), Fulbright (D.-Ark.) and Morse (Ind.-Ore.). Their charges, a number of which overlap, range from accusations about McCarthy's financial affairs to contentions that he has ridiculed other senators and public officials.

Demands Flanders Return
McCarthy demanded yesterday that Flanders return from Europe, where he has gone for a three-week vacation, to repeat under oath the 33 charges Flanders made against the Wisconsin senator. Flanders, in London, said he would return at once if asked by Watkins—not McCarthy.

A new report involving McCarthy, which may wind up as one of the documents before the Watkins committee, may be finished this week by the Senate Investigations subcommittee charged by McCarthy and Secretary of the Army Stevens and their aides.

Subcommittee members said over the weekend they are likely to settle on a bipartisan finding that McCarthy condoned the use of alleged improper pressure by Roy M. Cohn to get favored army treatment for Pvt. G. David Schine. Cohn, now resigned, was the subcommittee's chief counsel during the period in dispute and Schine was a staff member before being drafted.

May Be Criticized
On the other hand, they said Stevens is expected to be criticized for lack of firmness in dealing with McCarthy and Cohn.

McCarthy swung into a new attack on Harold E. Stassen during Senate debate on foreign aid Saturday night, accusing the foreign aid administrator of not telling the truth and of withholding information from Congress. The Wisconsin senator was promptly challenged by Sens. Dirksen (R.-Ill.) and Fulbright (D.-Ark.).

11 Persons Held
New York, Aug. 16 (AP)—A 70-year-old man and 10 members of an East Harlem gang were under arrest today as the aftermath of a series of weekend shootings in one of which a 16-year-old boy was slain. Police said all of those arrested—most of them teenagers—were members of a gang known as the Viceroyes. For some months, police said, the gang has been feuding with a gang known as the Dragons for the attentions of young women and to determine which gang was the "boss" of East Harlem.

Police Said Tests Backed Up Houk's Denial

Conferees Will Meet On Measure

Compromise May Come Late Today; House Seems Unwilling to Yield Issue

Washington, Aug. 16 (AP)—Congressional leaders indicated today that they may pry the atomic energy bill out of the congressional logjam in the next day or so.

Speaker Martin (R.-Mass.) said after a legislative conference at the White House that he would appoint House conferees to meet with those of the Senate immediately.

Chairman Ferguson (R.-Mich.) of the Senate Republican Policy Committee, said that would mean the conferees might be able to work out a compromise late today so that the Senate could vote on it tomorrow. The Senate already has rejected an earlier conference compromise.

Ferguson said he anticipated the conferees could come up with a version that would be acceptable to Senate Democrats who voted down the original compromise.

May Not Yield
House negotiators, however, seemed determined not to yield on the issue.

Conflict centered on whether private firms should be allowed sole patent rights on civilian nuclear power developments, as is permitted under normal patent laws.

The Senate called for a 10-year period of compulsory patent sharing. It threw out Friday a compromise without that provisions that had been worked out in conference with the House.

Rep. W. Sterling Cole (R.-N.Y.) told a reporter he believes most House conferees will continue fighting the Senate proposal. And, in apparent answer to Senate criticism, he said he had acted only as representative of a House majority in insisting on exclusive patent rights.

Cole said his position would be determined by the majority stand, "as it always is."

Democrats Blame Cole
Democrats charged on the Senate floor last week that one "stubborn man" referring to Cole was blocking agreement on the measure to put private industry into atomic energy.

Sen. Gore (D.-Tenn.) said the Senate reinforced its demand that patents be shared for some period by its 48-41 vote Friday in rejecting the first proposed compromise.

The version tossed out by the Senate would have allowed exclusive patent rights to private firms in the atomic energy field for 17 years, renewable for the same length of time, provided the patents did not cover developments made under government auspices. It would also have directed the Atomic Energy Commission (AEC) to give preference in granting atomic equipment licenses to companies agreeing to share patent rights for the first five years.

Fire Destroys Two-Story Frame Home at Malden
A fire of unknown origin completely destroyed the two-story frame home of Mr. and Mrs. Fred Kukuk on the state road, Malden-on-Hudson, Sunday afternoon.

All that was left of the home, construction of which was virtually complete, were the foundations. Mr. and Mrs. Kukuk were occupying rooms in the basement.

'Explosion' Heard
Shortly after 1 p. m., while Kukuk and friends were installing plumbing in the basement and Mrs. Kukuk was upstairs, a king of "explosion" was heard in the living room. Flames spread rapidly despite efforts of the Kukuks and friends to bring them under control.

The fire might have been controlled if the water had not been cut off at the time, as plumbing work was in progress.

Mrs. Henrietta Ross, a neighbor, reported the fire to the local department.

Six Companies Answer
Six companies responded: The C. A. Lynch Fire Company, Washington Hook and Ladder, R. A. Snyder Company, all of Saugerties; the Cedar Grove emergency squad, Mt. Marion Fire Company (dispatched a tank car) and the Malden-West Camp Fire Company.

They were still pouring water on the ruins at 9 p. m., eight hours later.

The community was reported to be organizing assistance for the Kukuks who were left destitute. They spent the night at the Ross home next door.

Leaders to Push Anti-Red Bill

New Approach May Take Place of Measure Voted by Senate

Washington, Aug. 16 (AP)—Congressional leaders agreed today to try to push through Congress a new bill to outlaw the Communist party as such.

In a session with President Eisenhower, the decision was to get the House to pass a measure declaring the Communist party as unlawful and without any rights.

It would not make membership in the party by individuals unlawful. But Speaker Martin (R.-Mass.) and Sen. Ferguson (R.-Mich.) said the government already can go after individual Communists, and is doing so, under the Smith Act, which makes it illegal to conspire to overthrow the government.

The new approach is intended to supplant a bill that was whipped through the Senate last week which would make it a crime to belong to the Communist party provided a person committed an overt act while a party member.

Ferguson explained that the plan agreed upon today approaches the question from the standpoint of the Communist party as such rather than individual members.

Plan Is Acceptable
Martin and Ferguson, the latter chairman of the Senate Republican Policy Committee, said that the new plan is acceptable to the administration. They said Atty. Gen. Brownell sat in on the White House discussions this morning.

Sen. Knowland of California, the GOP Senate leader, told reporters he thought the House might pass the new bill today under a suspension of the rules.

He said he also expects Senate action this week on three other anti-subversive bills that would make it easier to remove security risks who are employed in defense plants, tighten penalties for peacetime espionage, and deny pensions or other benefits to government employees who are convicted under loyalty actions or refuse to testify on such issues.

The administration has been dissatisfied with the bill passed by the Senate.

Carson Emberson, Jr., on Way to Kingston; Coroner Gives Verdict

Carson Emberson, Jr., 32, of St. Remy, was instantly killed about 12:30 a. m. Sunday when the automobile he was driving hit a tree and overturned on the Lucas Turnpike near Cottekill.

The sheriff's office reported Emberson was driving from Cottekill towards Kingston and failed to negotiate a curve in the road about five miles south of this city. The vehicle hit a tree on the left side of the road, rebounded and turned upside down landing on its roof on the pavement.

Emberson, who was pinned inside the car, died instantly of a fractured skull, fractured mandible, head laceration and crushed chest, Coroner Francis J. McCordle reported. A coroner's verdict of accidental death was issued and not post mortem examination was ordered.

Was Riding Alone
Emberson was riding alone, and no other vehicle was involved, the sheriff's office reported.

Unidentified occupants of another vehicle came upon the accident shortly after it occurred and went to the nearby home of Edwin McDonough, who notified the sheriff's office at 12:55 a. m.

Under Sheriff Clayton W. Vredenburg, County Investigator Arthur H. Brown and Deputies Thomas Mayone and John Kinsty investigated with Coroner McCordle. District Attorney Howard C. St. John was notified.

Had Birthday Saturday
Emberson, whose 32nd birthday was on Saturday, the day before the accident, was a well-known former local semi-professional boxer, fighting under the name of "Barney" Emberson. An older brother, Robert, also fought, using the name of "Buddy" Emberson, and another brother, Frank J. Emberson, appeared in the semi-professional ring several times.

Lower Premium Schedule Under Insurance Plan

Motorists Over 25 Who Do Not Drive to Work Will Get Largest Decrease

More than half of New York state's motorists will benefit from lower premiums for bodily injury and property damage liability insurance under a new classification rating plan announced today by Alfred J. Bohlinger, superintendent of insurance.

Motorists over 25 years of age who use their cars for pleasure driving only and do not drive to work will receive the largest reduction. Certain other groups, such as unmarried motorists under 25 years of age, will pay higher premiums.

Will Reduce Rates
In Kingston, Highland and Newburgh, the rate for $10,000/$20,000 bodily injury and $5,000 property damage insurance in the new class 1A, motorists 25 years of age or older who do not drive to work, will be reduced from the present $70.20 to $64.60. Neither figure includes the premium for medical payments, which is $6 additional. In Poughkeepsie the comparable reduction is from $67 to $59.

Insurance men estimate that the new subdivision of Class 1 which applies to motorists who do not drive their cars to work will benefit a larger percentage of New York residents than local residents. In Manhattan, Bronx and Brooklyn, 66.4 per cent of all motorists fall in the new 1A category, whereas in the rest of the state only 35 per cent will qualify.

Others who will benefit from the new classification plan include motorists who have youthful operators in their family who occasionally drive the car, and young married couples with children.

Three Groups
Presently motorists are divided into three groups: Class 1, those 25 years or older who do not have any youthful drivers operating their cars; Class 2, those who are under 25 or have a youthful driver using their car, and Class 3, those motorists not (Continued on Page 9, Col. 4)

Nationalist Drive Appears Stymied; New March Set
New Delhi, India, Aug. 16 (AP)—The Goan Nationalist drive to oust the Portuguese from India appeared temporarily stymied today, Indian and Portuguese police combined to keep yesterday's much-heralded "liberation" invasion down to a mere trickle. There were no reports of any injury.

But one Goan Nationalist leader vowed his group would march again—without warning.

Reports reaching New Delhi on yesterday's demonstration for the merger with India of Goa and Portugal's other 400-year-old holdings on the sub-continent gave this picture:

Indian police, apparently acting on government orders, banned Indian Nationalists from taking part in the demonstration timed to coincide with this country's Independence Day celebration.

As a result, only small groups—mostly teen-agers—out of Goa's total population of 600,000 actually demonstrated.

At the main Portuguese settlement of Goa, south of Bombay, only about 50 demonstrators crossed the border at three points. The Portuguese police arrested all of them.

At the Portuguese settlement of Damão, north of Bombay, Indian police detained 1,200 Indians who tried to march into the enclave. The demonstrators—members of the Praja Socialist Party—were herded into trucks after they refused to disband and carted off to Vapi, where (Continued on Page 9, Col. 4)

Prediction Is Nation To Benefit

Total Cuts Will Amount to $1,363,000,000 in Year; Eisenhower Hails Program

Washington, Aug. 16 (AP)—President Eisenhower today signed into law the biggest tax revision program in history—what he called a "monumental" overhaul that will "benefit all Americans."

The new law, Eisenhower said in a statement, will "help millions of Americans by giving them a fairer tax treatment." At the same time, he added, it "will help our economy expand and thus add materially to the strength of our nation."

The new law brings about tax reductions of $1,363,000,000 in the first year, and more later on, for millions of individuals and nearly all corporations.

In all, the initial year's tax cuts will total about $1,363,000,000. This will be increased later as the new program takes full effect.

Cornerstone of Program
Eisenhower has called tax revision the cornerstone of his entire domestic program. The measure makes no major changes in revenue rates but rewrites almost every tax law on the books.

Whether the legislation will meet the expectations of its supporters is still a subject for dispute.

Sen. Bridges (R.-N. H.), the Senate's president pro tempore, called it one of Congress' major accomplishments. But Sen. George W. Ball (D.-Conn.), a leading Democrat, termed it "not a good job" and added, "we'll be amending it for the next four or five years." Bridges and George expressed their conflicting views in interviews yesterday.

Many Democrats contend the GOP tax program is slanted in favor of corporations and the wealthy. Their efforts in house and Senate to write in a general income tax cut for everybody were beaten only after stiff fights.

To Remove 'Shackles'
Republican leaders argued that the tax changes will remove many "shackles" from business expansion, encourage growth, create more and better jobs for workers, and give the whole economy a boost.

Debate over the program's merits is expected to run right through the fall election campaign.

The measure, nearly 1,000 pages in length and marking the first major tax revision since 1875, calls for changes along four general lines:

1. It eliminates what its sponsors call harsh inequities on many individuals with special needs or problems. These provisions include new or bigger tax deductions for medical expenses, retired persons, sick-leave pay, dependent children who earn more than $600, mothers or widowers who pay child-care expenses while they work, and many others.

2. It includes a host of benefits for corporations and other business firms, in effect providing a whole new climate for the national economy. It permits much faster deductions for wear and tear on new equipment and buildings, a special deduction on stockholders' income from dividends, more freedom to pile up surplus funds for future expansion, more liberal treatment of research expenses, more liberal provisions for deducting losses in bad years from profits in good years, and many other such items.

At home in London, observers speculated that Chou in his talks with Attlee was pressing his own stepped-up campaign to get Formosa from under the control of Chiang Kai-Shek and his Nationalist government.

Two conservative papers, the Sunday Chronicle and Sunday Express, considered it significant that Peiping radio had waited three days, until the eve of Attlee's arrival, to announce Chou's major foreign policy speech last week in which he said Formosa must be "liberated" and "we will brook no foreign interference," especially from the United States.

Solid Gains Are Note by Business In Some Measures

BY SAM DAWSON
New York, Aug. 16 (AP)—Businessmen are counting up today some solid gains—along with some dashed hopes—dealt this year by a Congress widely considered to be "more business-minded" than its predecessors.

Legislation of prime interest to business lies in these fields: Taxation, government economy, defense spending, public power, atomic energy, foreign trade, housing, and the St. Lawrence seaway.

High on the plus side from the point of view of business is the tax reform law, aimed at encouraging industrial expansion and production, and thus making jobs and swelling payrolls.

But Congress ignored industry's plea that the 52 per cent corporate income tax rate be allowed to drop to 47 per cent on schedule, and instead extended the higher rate until next April.

tax reform measure. These cover depreciation allowances, research and development, and the carry-back of losses for tax purposes.

To Wider Purchasing
Nor did exemption of dividends from individual income taxes go as far as business had first hoped. But industry feels that the token exemptions should lead to wider purchasing of corporate stocks by the citizenry.

Congress sliced some excise taxes and helped move goods involved—classified as luxuries or semi-luxuries—off store shelves, and helped consumers save on various services, recreation and entertainment charges. Manufacturers are hoping for still further cuts in the next session.

Victories Are Counted
Private power leaders count a number of victories. Congress laid aside several public power projects to give private firms or local authorities the go-ahead signal.

Businessmen eager to get into the infant atomic power field are counting on a partial victory—not as much right to develop nuclear fission plants through private enterprise as many want, but at least a beginning despite all the built-in restrictions.

Congress put a brake on public housing, to the cheers of private builders. It also liberalized financing rules, and jubilant builders predict a continued home building boom, with all that means to the construction industry and financing institutions.

Cuts in defense spending and cancellation of military orders caused layoffs in many plants.

The St. Lawrence seaway, which will open the midcontinent to ocean shipping and develop some public power, brings joy and visions of profits to many industries an a number of potential "seaports". But some existing seaports, railroads and power companies see it as one of Congress' most damaging acts.

Are Not Too Happy
Foreign traders aren't too happy either. Congress ditched most of the President's program for liberalizing world trade. It extended the reciprocal trade act for only one year—and foreign traders expect very little will be done under this act in the next year.

Congress economized a little more on foreign aid—a controversial subject. Some industrialists say that U. S. money is being used abroad to build up foreign industries in competition with our own. Others contend the money sent abroad is used to buy American goods—and they can use the market.

Adding it up: Businessmen feel they fared pretty well in this session. That, of course, won't keep them—or anyone else—from asking for more in the next session.

Calls to Police Are On Many Subjects

"How far from a house must a rabbit be?"

This is only a sample of some of the odd questions coming into Kingston police headquarters.

The lady called—long distance—to ask Acting Sgt. Thomas Tomshaw what the law was on rabbits—how far from a house must a rabbit be?

She also wanted to know if it made any difference whether the rabbit was wild or tame.

Well, it seemed a neighbor had a rabbit in the yard and the little fellow liked to come over into her property and nibble her vegetables. So, what was the law?

Not so long ago Acting Sgt. Carl Janasiewicz received a long distance call from the northern part of the county. A lady wanted to report that she had just run over a rabbit! Figured she had to notify police.

Or local headquarters may get a call complaining that garbage wasn't picked up—or just asking the time of day.

It's all part of being a policeman!

To Make Stage Debut

Mountainhome, Pa., Aug. 16 (AP)—Gloria Vanderbilt Stokowski, heiress and wife of conductor Leopold Stokowski, makes her stage debut tonight in the role of a fairy tale princess.

Miss Vanderbilt will appear in Ferenc Molnar's "The Swan" on the stage of the Pocono Playhouse where Margaret Truman made her formal stage bow last June 21. Now 30 years old and the mother of two children, Gloria was once referred to as the "poor little rich girl." As a child, she was the subject of a family court fight for her custody that made headlines for many months.

Dewey Spokesman Sees 'Smokescreen' By Mayor Wagner

Albany, Aug. 16 (AP)—A spokesman for Gov. Dewey says Mayor Robert F. Wagner's proposal for a special committee to study New York city-state fiscal relations is a "great political smokescreen to cover up the failures of his administration."

In a statement yesterday, Harry J. O'Donnell, the governor's press secretary, pressed the Dewey administration's attack on the Wagner plan.

Dewey said Saturday that the mayor was "playing the crudest kind of politics."

O'Donnell said Wagner was guilty of "heartless cruelty" toward the people of New York, and termed the proposed study group "Wagner's bundles-for-Tammany committee."

Renews Proposal
The mayor on Friday night had renewed his proposal for what he called an "impartial" 10-member commission to study the city-state fiscal relationship. He would name five members, Dewey the other half.

O'Donnell, speaking obviously with Dewey's approval, said: "Mayor Wagner is now engaged in trying to lay down a great political smokescreen to cover up the failures of his administration, which has dragged the greatest city in the world down into shameful disrepute."

"...the mayor's suggestion is heartless cruelty to the people of New York because it presents the illusion that government can be run by hundreds of unrelated committees, each deciding state fiscal policy without regard to the whole."

O'Donnell pointed out that two state commissions currently were studying state-local tax relations and the basic formula for state aid for schools. Creation of a third committee would be a "slur" to the other two, he added.

'Political Football'
Wagner, commenting earlier on Dewey's remarks, said the governor "insists on making a political football of our municipal finances."

He said the governor had used the opportunity to make "an ill-tempered attack on me," he added.

"This suggestion of mine is not new. I have made it several times before and the proposal has been offered sincerely and in all good faith."

"I would like to make it clear," he continued, "that I have no wish for this administration to dodge its responsibilities or do any buck-passing, as the governor charges."

"Nor do I wish to indulge in any name-calling. The problem of properly financing those services so essential to our people is much too grave for the sort of thing."

Wagner, in voicing his latest plea, said he was doing so because the city needed more funds for additional policemen to meet the growing crime rate.

O'Donnell said the mayor had 45 million dollars in idle city money at his disposal—funds which, the governor's aide said, Wagner could use to cope with the problem.

Estranged Husband Tells of Shooting

New York, Aug. 16 (AP)—An estranged husband fired a single rifle shot from a car parked near his wife's home last night and killed a man who had just brought her back from a Sunday outing, police reported.

Salvatore Morena, 43, then drove to a nearby police station and surrendered, telling the desk sergeant, "I've just shot a man."

The dead man was identified as George Ginexi, 49, of Malverne, Long Island.

Police gave this account: Morena, a welder employed by the Long Island Railroad, said his wife, Ida, 38, had been going around with Ginexi for a number of years.

Morena said he and his wife had considered a divorce but were unable to agree about the custody of their two children, Rosemarie, 15, and Salvatore Jr., 12. Since last June, Morena said, he had been living at the Jamaica YMCA.

Morena drove to his wife's home in Fresh Meadows, Queens, last night and parked across the street to wait for Ginexi to appear. About an hour later, Ginexi drove up with Mrs. Morena and her son whom he had taken to Coney Island.

As they went toward the house, Morena fired his 30-30 rifle and Ginexi dropped to the ground. Mrs. Morena's screams aroused the neighborhood as her husband drove off to the police station.

Ginexi was the owner of an aluminum firm in West Hempstead on Long Island. He was married, with a 17-year-old daughter.

Morena was booked on a charge of homicide by Queens police early today.

HOOVER STILL FIGHTING

Few men attain the age of 80 displaying more vigor than Herbert Hoover, who acts like he could take to the hustings and lambaste the Democrats every day of the week for months on end.

As he passed his 80th milestone at West Branch, Iowa, his birthplace, the nation's oldest living ex-President delivered himself of a speech in such challenging tones that some of his listeners must have been tempted to yell, "Give 'em hell, Herbie." Certainly Harry Truman, the only other member of the living ex-Presidents' club, must have wondered whether someone was stealing his stuff.

Like Mr. Truman, Mr. Hoover has good reason to deal in fighting words. Mr. Truman was heavily maligned in his first term, and even marked for discard by some of his party leaders when nominating time rolled around in 1948. Mr. Hoover for years bore the stigma of identity with the Great Depression.

Gradually, the perspective of time made it plain to all but the most rabid partisans that Mr. Hoover was neither the instigator nor the perpetrator of the depression. He simply happened to be at the helm when tremendous economic forces gripped the country and the world in a cataclysm.

But the Democrats never stopped blaming him for the disaster. As late as the 1952 campaign, his name still was being traded on for votes by those who sought to stir fears of another great "bust."

Understandably, therefore, Mr. Hoover in turn has never ceased fighting back. In the realm of accomplishment, he has long gone on to new things. Again and again he has been called on to employ his organizing talents on major missions, like the task of reorganizing government agencies. For these works he has gained the admiration and respect of men in both parties.

Yet his West Branch speech showed he could not be content with such honors. His Republicanism, he believes, cannot be served by quiet achievement alone. He sees it as a cause to be trumpeted loudly from the nation's platforms. And conversely, he sees the intervening Democratic regimes of Presidents Roosevelt and Truman as having hurt the United States both at home and abroad.

This able man has toiled so long and usefully in the service of his country, that he still has the urge and the stamina to shout his convictions, that he still has unbounded confidence in America.

At West Branch, he expressed it simply and well.

"Eighty years is a long time for a man to live. As the shadows lengthen over my years, my confidence, my hopes and dreams for my countrymen are undimmed."

The newest lawn mowers provide seats for the operators. Pretty soon our only exercise will be the walk from bedroom to kitchen to garage.

WHAT NOT TO EAT

Friends of national health should do more to popularize sound ideas about diet. A survey made by Rutgers University scientists of the breakfast habits of the vicinity's industrial workers, revealed that the favorite breakfast was coffee and a sweet roll. This might be supplemented in midmorning by a bottle of pop or a candy bar.

Naturally such a diet is not only lacking in minerals and vitamins, but cuts down the appetite. Of the eaters of such foods 44 per cent were overweight. One fourth had insufficient calcium, necessary for sound bones and teeth. A pint of milk daily would be a great improvement over what the men actually chose. A third of the workers were low in vitamin C showing that they did not eat enough citrus fruits, tomatoes and leafy green vegetables.

'These Days'

By GEORGE SOKOLSKY

SHADES OF HITLER

Dr. Otto John, who spent some time in the United States last spring, devoting himself to a study of our counter-espionage activities, must now be regarded as part of the Kremlin apparatus.

On the air, over "Deutschlandsender," the East German radio station, he said:

"Dr. Adenauer's one-sided link up with American policy, and the remilitarization and revival of National Socialism connected therewith, are bound to lead to a new war which would not only bring yet greater and more unimaginable sufferings upon the German people, but would also prejudice the further existence of our people as a Nation. I say this fully conscious of my responsibility, on the strength of my own experience and knowledge of truly decisive factors which are not unknown to the leading personalities in Bonn with whom I have been working.

"Warnings alone are no longer sufficient; action is needed. . . I have followed the voice of my conscience, and I am convinced that I have chosen the right course."

It is the ghost of Hitler that continues to ride the world. Whereas the vast Communist worldwide apparatus is a fact, visible to the eye and ear, and revival of Nazism is not evident except perhaps to a degree in West Germany, yet Hitler left so horrifying a memory of inhuman brutality behind him that the mere thought of the return of the Nazi sends shivers down the spines of millions of people.

This has undoubtedly become the greatest advantage to Communist operations throughout the world, particularly in the United States. The fear of the emergence of an American Hitler is real, particularly as the disclosure of Communist espionage in this country stimulates a mass emotionalism, which while it has not yet expressed itself in any positive manner, exists nevertheless. The genuine fear of Joe McCarthy is that his unquestioned ability to dramatize the anti-Communist issue might throw him into the role of a mobilizer of the anti-Communist forces into a pro-McCarthy political party which could give him, at least in some stages, the role of a Hitler. Herbert Brownell, when he accuses McCarthy of seeking to establish a one-man government by Congressional committee authority over Executive agencies is, in my opinion, seeking to arouse a national resistance to McCarthy as an incipient Hitler.

McCarthy and his friends have recognized this trend for a year. They have been particularly conscious that certain organizations in New York have finally reached the conclusion that they cannot risk McCarthy becoming so great a figure that he could not be handled, at some future date, by ordinary political processes. McCarthy has not been accused, in public, of being an anti-Semite because such a charge is so untrue as to be readily disproven, particularly by the many Jews associated with McCarthy. But the secretive smear campaign to this effect is constant and general and is widely believed. And it must be said that this campaign represents neither fear of nor objection to Joe McCarthy; it is the ghost of Hitler that rides the world. It is fear of Hitler; it is the memory of Hitler.

The danger in this is that it works favorably to Communists. They keep the concept of Hitlerism alive; they identify every anti-Communist with this concept. Martin Dies was called a Fascist; Joe McCarthy is being identified as a prospective Hitler. It is a pattern that is world-wide. Chiang Kai-shek, for instance, is being described to the world as a dictator. Until the death of Stalin, the United States was allied to that dictator for many years. A distinction could be made between a good dictator and a bad one: Stalin was a good dictator worthy of our aid; Franco was an evil dictator worthy of our exorcism. Since the death of Stalin, all dictators are described as evil, and to smear a man all that need be said against him is that he aspires to be a Hitler. At that point, he is supposed to drop dead politically.

Why do we play into the hands of the Communists? The answer is simple. They know how to say what we want to believe. They make a pattern of our fears and they use that pattern to our disadvantage. Both the Otto John Case and the McCarthy situation need to be viewed from this standpoint.

DRUG ADDICTION IN SCHOOL CHILDREN

The surprising outbreak of drug addiction in the New York city schools during 1950-51 and continuing into the first months of the 1951-52 school year, was considered to be a public health problem and was studied as if it were an epidemic. This new type of epidemic was studied carefully by the school health service with the aid of the teachers and police. The main difference in this epidemic, as compared with other epidemics such as influenza, is that drug addiction is not truly a disease in itself but is a symptom of poor adjustment of the personality of each child involved.

In the American Journal of Public Health, Dr. H. Jacobziner reports on the background of 165 proven users of narcotics. It was estimated that this was about one-quarter of the number of actual users.

What did he find?

1. The rate of addiction to drugs was highest in the vocational schools where a large number of underprivileged students were enrolled.
2. Many were the product of broken homes.
3. Of the total, over half came from three schools located in critical areas and one school alone was responsible for one-quarter of the users.
4. Surprisingly enough, 89 per cent were males. Press reports had exaggerated the number of girls involved.
5. The age group in which addiction was highest was the 15-17 group.
6. Only 8 out of the 165 had police records.
7. The only physical signs were numerous needle scars, punctures, and sclerosis (hardening) of the veins.
8. The majority started by smoking marijuana.

They gave as their reason for taking the drugs the fact that it gave them a sensation of feeling "normal." All their tensions and frustrations faded away. It is significant that all knew where and how to obtain the drug.

Dr. Jacobziner feels that this problem calls for all-out community effort. New York's success in stemming the epidemic proves that it can be done. Legislation dealing with slum clearance and promotion of good housing is important. Narcotic addiction should be included in the list of reportable diseases. Of course, a continued program of health education is necessary along with help for the underprivileged adolescent.

'The Pen Could Be Mightier Than the Sword at That'

Edson's Washington News Notebook

By PETER EDSON

NEA Washington Correspondent

Washington—(NEA)—It will be the major political miracle of all time if the Six Senators in Search of an answer on the McCarthy question can procure one that will satisfy everybody or anybody.

Grant that the senators are men of good will, noble intent and the highest of patriotic motives. No breath of scandal has been produced against Republicans Watkins of Utah, Carlson of Kansas or Case of South Dakota; nor against Democrats Johnson of Colorado, Stennis of Mississippi and Ervin of North Carolina.

None has so far achieved any recognition as being among the great senators. All are middle-class men of apparent honesty and integrity as politicians go. A more representative jury on any simple question of right and wrong would be hard to find. But this particular case they have been asked to decide almost defies satisfactory solution.

Suppose they bring in a report that Senator McCarthy is guilty of all or most of these charges made against him by Republican Senator Flanders of Vermont, Democratic Senator Fulbright of Arkansas, Independent Senator Morse of Oregon.

That he refused to appear before the Gillette elections subcommittee of 1952, investigating charges of prior misconduct.

That the work of his former investigators, Roy Cohn and David Schine, compromised the national honor.

That he has shown an habitual contempt of government officials like Brig.-Gen. Ralph W. Zwicker.

That he accepted $10,000 from Lustron corporation without rendering comparable services.

That he publicly urged government employees to violate their oaths of office by furnishing him with secret information.

That he has made unwarranted attacks against Gen. George C. Marshall.

No McCarthy supporter will believe or pay any attention to any finding of guilty on any of these charges.

There is nothing in this language which would bounce Joe out of his chairmanships or stop his investigations in any way.

On the other hand, suppose a finding of not guilty is brought in by the committee. There would be immediate cries of whitewash, and of the senators' unwillingness to chastise a member of their club, no matter how unbecoming his behavior.

A split report, on political or any other lines, would be just as unsatisfactory.

It must be recognized, also, that no matter what the report of the committee, it must be made to the full Senate and that the final decision must be made by a vote of the full Senate.

In arriving at this decision, there will be the usual unlimited Senate debate. So the end would still appear to be remote.

Senator McCarthy has been investigated before with no ill effects. The Gillette committee, later headed by Senator Hennings of Missouri, labored from August, 1951, to December, 1952. The result was a long and fully documented report which said in its summary: "The subcommittee itself is not making any recommendations in this matter. The record should speak for itself. The issue raised is one for the entire Senate."

The Senate ducked and did nothing. The report was bucked to Department of Justice. Nine months later its attorneys reported that no basis had been found for prosecution of Senator McCarthy on charges of violating the election laws. That left everything just where it had been before, firmly suspended in midair.

This year, of course, Senator McCarthy was investigated by another special subcommittee under Sen. Karl Mundt of South Dakota. It labored from April 22 to June 17. Its findings aren't in yet.

How the new committee under the chairmanship of Senator Watkins can speed up this procedure is hard to see, unless it prepares its report in a vacuum. If it takes evidence, listens to charges and countercharges and permits cross-examination by both sides, the show could run till election day or doomsday.

But the Watkins committee will apparently avoid some of the worst sideshow antics which made the Army-McCarthy hearings a national disgrace.

AS PEGLER SEES IT

By WESTBROOK PEGLER

New York, Aug. 12.—Pursuing an inquiry started by Jack Lait, Jr., radio-television editor of the Los Angeles Examiner, I have requested and received from John E. Drewry, dean of the Henry W. Grady School of Journalism of the University of Georgia, data concerning Mr. Drewry's qualifications as a journalist and his authority to confer "honors" on radio pundits in the name of the late George Foster Peabody.

I may start this essay at the conclusion. The conclusion is that I have never inspected a stuffed shirt who assayed such a high content of Kaplow Spanish moss and nothing whatever as Dean Drewry. Paul Hoffman, late of the Roosevelt-Truman world-wide patronage machine, late of the Ford Foundation and now back with Studebaker, would be second choice in a photo-finish.

Herbert Bayard Swowe thunders up third, late as he always was at banquets in the Jimmy Walker era, a strategist which thrust him into prominence among those present at many auspicious occasions in honor of who gives a dam? Both Hoffman and Swowe have taken a firm stand against Joe McCarthy.

For sheer emptiness of honors, Dean Drewry makes even Hoffman look absolutely majestic, whereas Herbie's little collection of bottle-caps and committee badges take on the grandeur of an emperor's cushion at a lying-in-state.

Lait's inquiry brought out the fact that the Peabody Award, cynically known as the George Foster Nobody Prize, almost invariably goes to radio pundits who follow a common political slant. The angle of that slant may be divined from the fact that the awards usually

Today in Washington

Senators Are Discussing 'Moot' Censure Action Due to New Information

By DAVID LAWRENCE

Washington, Aug. 16.—Various senators were discussing today information that has just come to light which may make "moot"—the legal term for irrelevant—any censure action on all those charges against Senator McCarthy relating to occurrences prior to January, 1953, now before a special Senate committee of six members. Three developments have occurred:

1. Revelation that the Senate Subcommittee on Privileges and Elections in its report at the end of the 82nd Congress, formally agreed that a number of the charges before it had become "moot" by reason of the 1952 election in Wisconsin.

2. Publication by the Washington Evening Star of a copyrighted article stating that agents of the Internal Revenue Bureau, after an eighteen-month investigation, have found nothing fraudulent in the income tax returns of the Wisconsin senator.

3. Evidence supporting in effect a statement in May 1954, by the Wisconsin senator saying that it is not unlawful to receive confidential information from employees in the executive departments. It develops that although a federal statute prohibits the disclosure of confidential information by employees of the executive branch of the government and threatens them with jail penalties for violation, the recipient—whether it be a senator or a newspaper—may feel justified in publishing the information.

The formal report of the subcommittee headed by Senator Hennings of Missouri, Democrat, which contained all the charges concerning Senator McCarthy's sale of a booklet on housing of veterans to the Lustron Corporation, the attacks on General Marshall and all the innuendoes about other alleged improprieties, was made to Congress prior to the time the new Senate of the 83rd Congress in January, 1953, had an opportunity to accept or reject the Wisconsin senator's credentials after his 1952 election. In an addendum filed at the last minute early in 1953, the Senate subcommittee said:

"The foregoing report is based substantially on testimony and exhibits which were presented before the Subcommittee on Privileges and Elections. However, because of a lack of continuity in committee membership and delays beyond the control of the present membership of the committee, its preparation has given us great concern, as a number of its aspects have become moot by reason of the 1952 election. Such facts therein as were known to the people of the states particularly affected have been passed upon by the people themselves in the election."

This refers to a well-established point of constitutional law, namely that a member of Congress just elected can be tried as to his "qualifications" only at the opening of a new term, and if his credentials are accepted without reservation he cannot be challenged again. Senator McCarthy's credentials for his present term were accepted in January 1953. Whatever alleged misconduct as a member of Congress took place during his preceding term, including speeches, must be questioned during that term.

This leaves the matter of income tax returns. For if the Treasury Department were to present any criminal charges during the present term it could affect the continuance in office of a member of Congress so charged. But the Washington Evening Star last week said concerning the investigation of Senator McCarthy's income taxes: "The case covers the tax years from 1946 to 1952. The tax agents do not contend that Senator McCarthy acted with fraudulent intent."

The newspaper headline across the top of its front page did say that the same "revenue agents" claim that Senator McCarthy "owes $25,000 in back taxes and interest." The Wisconsin senator flatly denies this. Both the newspaper and the senator could be right at different times in the proceedings—depending on the outcome of the case and whether the technical or colloquial use of the word "owe" was intended. At the moment the senator does not technically "owe" anything. Nobody owes the Treasury any money until a formal deficiency assessment is filed, which has evidently not been done in Senator McCarthy's case. Even this may be contested for months or years through various boards inside the Internal Revenue Bureau and through the U. S. tax court before it is finally decided whether a taxpayer actually owes anything in back taxes.

The Wisconsin senator, although displeased by what he claims is the damaging effect of the newspaper headline, can derive satisfaction from its publication, because in a sense it proves a point he has been making, namely that whatever laws may govern executive employees who take an oath not to divulge confidential or classified information, this does not necessarily affect anyone outside the government who receives such information and publishes it. The internal revenue law in Section 7213 says:

"It shall be unlawful for any officer or employee of the United States to divulge or to make known in any manner whatever not provided by law to any person the amount or source of any income, profits, losses, expenditures or any other financial or set forth or disclosed in any income return, or permit any income return or copy thereof or any book containing any abstract or particulars thereof to be seen or examined by any person except as provided by law; and it shall be unlawful for any person to print or publish in any manner whatever not provided by law any income return or any part thereof. . . . The penalty is a fine of $1,000 and imprisonment for one year, or both, and if the guilty offender is a federal employee he must be discharged from the government."

But the constitution says Congress shall not make any law abridging freedom of the press, and it is questionable whether anyone in the employ of a newspaper can be punished for printing news about persons in public life. The really important fact is that while Attorney General Brownell recently stated publicly that the Department of Justice had found no violation of any federal laws by Senator McCarthy, he did say at the time that an examination of income tax returns by the Treasury Department had not been completed. Now it is revealed through the Washington Evening Star article that, while there may be a civil dispute between the Internal Revenue Bureau and Senator McCarthy about back taxes, and many members of Congress have their returns questioned and often pay additional taxes—no evidence of fraud or crime is involved here. Apparently this was the same conclusion reached by the Truman administration which also examined Senator McCarthy's income tax returns. (Reproduction rights reserved)

Onteora Student
Is Named Winner
In Ford Art Contest

Natty Juliano of West Shokan, a student of Onteora High School, has been named a winner in Ford Motor Company's 1954 Industrial Arts Awards program, according to Dewey F. Barich, manager of Ford's educational relations department.

The honorable mention award of $20 to Mr. Juliano was in the wood division for a horse head lamp.

This program is an annual competition open to any student in vocational or industrial arts courses in public, private or parochial schools in the U. S. and territories. The program is now in its fifth year of Ford sponsorship.

Henry Ford, 2, pointed out that despite the high degree of specialization that characterizes modern mass production methods, there remains a great need for finer craftsmen throughout American industry.

"Industrial arts and trade and industrial courses in our junior and senior high schools are doing much among young people to kindle a greater appreciation of hand skills and a spirit of pride in performance," he declared.

Upon completion of the national judging, the 700 cash prize winners are placed on public display at the Museum of Science and Industry in Chicago.

A crown of iridescent flowers secured a three-tiered fingertip veil. The bride carried a prayer book trimmed with a white orchid and Stephanotis.

A VERY UNFAIR QUESTION

This morning a groom writes: "Two weeks ago the young man who is to be best man at my wedding called and said that he was going to give a bachelor dinner for me on such and such a date and asked me if I had any friends I wanted to invite in addition to those he was inviting. I said that if it was all right with him I would like to have three of the young men in my office with whom I am quite friendly. He said I should go right ahead and ask them, which I did. Much to my surprise after the party was over, the 'host' asked these three men for seven dollars apiece which was their share of the party. They paid it quite willingly but I am sure they were just as surprised at this as I was. I would never have asked them if I knew they were going to be asked to contribute and I was very embarrassed over the whole thing. Could I possibly reimburse them for this expense? All three are married and I know every penny counts."

I agree with you that your friend has put you under an unfair obligation, and I think you should repay these friends of yours if you can.

Delayed Invitation
Dear Mrs. Post: A shower invitation was delayed in the mail and I received it just this morning—a week after the shower has taken place. I am very much upset about this as the bride is a very dear friend of mine, and I don't want her to think I stayed away from the shower deliberately. I certainly would have gone, had I known about it, and brought her a nice present. Would it be in order to send her a present now and explain what happened?

Answer: Yes, it is the only thing for you to do!

A Friend's Chauffeur
Dear Mrs. Post: Occasionally I am driven home from a friend's house by her chauffeur. I would like to know if I am supposed to give him a tip.

Answer: Not for an occasional ride, but if this happens often, you might remember him at Christmas.

Is it proper to use place cards for a small dinner party? Mrs. Post is sorry she cannot answer personal mail. Her booklet No. 504, "Table Setting," describes the use of place cards. To obtain a copy send 25 cents in coin to Dept. EP, in care of the Kingston Daily Freeman, P. O. Box 99, Station G, New York 19, N. Y.

Hostess Holds Open Door, 37 Escape

Blackbushe Airport, England, Aug. 16 (AP)—A calm Irish hostess held the door of her burning airliner open here yesterday as all 37 Britons aboard fled out to safety. A few minutes later all but the tail section of the plane burned.

Beryl Rothwell was the heroine following the crash landing of the chartered Viking belonging to Airwork, Ltd. One of the plane's engines failed shortly after it took off for Nice, France, then a wing and an engine snapped off as the aircraft belly-landed short of the runway and caught fire.

Miss Rothwell discounted her own role in the crash, paying tribute instead to the passengers. "They behaved as coolly as though an air crash were an everyday incident," she said.

Arrangements for the evening were in charge of Miss Abernethy.

Think It Through

By EDWARD F. HUTTON

Are we conscious of history and the results of the communistic conquest of 800,000,000 people?

We are shocked beyond comprehension. We are a young nation, idealistic and a bit naive. We can't follow the thinking of older nations who have failed to help us so that we can help them to stay free.

Apparently they feel that we are pushing our tonic down their throats. But they don't gag over our billions of money and arms! They sit comfortably in the United Nations, mildly excited at times, expecting us to pick up the checks.

If we had read the history of 200 years, we'd weep. Holland, Spain, France, Britain—all over-running America, South America, Africa, India—and so on. Talk about aggressors! These countries have a record!

Take a fresh look at France. She took Cambodia in 1787, Tonkin and Anam in 1884, Laos, 1893, by well armed "police engagements." What has she done in these long years but milk them dry?

In Indo-China she "seized" their rice, sugar, pepper, coal, cotton, hides and rubber, and has not improved the living standards of the people. Her interest was the same as that of the Red Chinese now—exploitation.

It could be the United States isn't reading history right. The quiz question is: CAN WE LICK THE WORLD? Doubtful! And it could be that the native people won't like their new landlords better than their old ones.

What think, neighbor?

The Mature Parent

Give Child the Advantage Of Clear-Cut Decisions

By MRS. MURIEL LAWRENCE

Most of the children on Don's street have rubber splash pools in their back yards. Don has been teasing his mother for one of his own, and up to now she has said, "Maybe—we'll see." For she and Don's father are still strained by the heavy expenses involved in buying, furnishing and moving to their new ranch house.

Yesterday she settled the splash pool question. She found that Don had tracked tar into the house on his shoes. As she scrubbed angrily at her new stair carpet, she cried:

"Don't ask me for that splash pool again! I had intended to buy one for you this week. Now I won't. After what you've done to my new carpet, don't dare ask me for it again. . . ."

Don's mother was not telling the truth. She had not intended to buy him a splash pool. She can't afford one. But ashamed of her financial limitations in a community of splash pools, she has been unable to say so.

Rather than confess to Don that his parents are not as currently prosperous as his friends' parents, she has made him responsible for losing the splash pool. Defensive herself, she has waited to find Don in a defensive position to say "no" to his demand.

She has treated him unjustly. As he was never made responsible for earning the splash pool, he is not responsible for losing it. He was never informed that tar on the carpet would result in its denial. So he had no way of protecting himself against loss of the splash pool by checking his shoes for tar before entering the house.

Shame of financial limitation often develops teasing, demanding children. If Don feels apology in us when he pleads for his splash pool, he naturally concludes we think we owe it to him.

If Alice feels defensiveness in our "No" to a new crinoline, she naturally concludes she can change our mind.

Soon these youngsters' respect for our judgments is so subverted that they undertake to make all the judgments for us. They press their own upon us until we turn on them in anger and injustice like Don's mother.

It is very pleasant to be able to provide splash pools, expensive clothes and other advantages to children.

But it is even better to give them the advantage of clear-cut decision. Otherwise they suffer loss of moral strength in chronic resentment at the begrudging, hesitating people they have to live with.

Many Groups May Find Benefits in New Tax Measure

Taxes—Special Benefits
Washington, Aug. 16 (AP)—Widows or widowers, policemen, ministers, writers, artists, inventors, business partners . . .

Taxpayers who sell their home, support a parent in another town, live in cooperative housing projects, or get income in advance for a future period . . .

All these groups may find tax benefits for them almost hidden in the hundreds of thousands of words of the new tax revision act.

Possible Tax Cuts
Most of the changes are effective last Jan. 1, and will show up in tax returns due next April 15. Here is a rundown on possible tax cuts for these special groups:

Widows and widowers—For two years after the death of a wife or husband, you may still split your income for tax purposes as most married couples do. This often puts you in a lower tax bracket, but to claim this provision, you must be supporting a dependent son or daughter.

Possible Tax Cuts
Most of the changes are effective last Jan. 1, and will show up in tax returns due next April 15. Here is a rundown on possible tax cuts for these special groups:

Widows and widowers—For two years after the death of a wife or husband, you may still split your income for tax purposes as most married couples do. This often puts you in a lower tax bracket, but to claim this provision, you must be supporting a dependent son or daughter.

Under the old law, the parent had to live in your home. The "single head of household" status gives you one-half the benefits of income splitting, explained above.

Can Deduct Allowance
Policemen—now can deduct subsistence allowances up to $5 a day, which were counted as taxable income under the old law. This could mean a tax cut of about $364 a year for many federal, state and local officers.

Ministers—Cash payments to a minister for rental of a home were counted as income under the old law, although the rental value of a parsonage provided for the minister was exempt. Under the new law, the cash allowance also is exempt to the extent it is actually used for housing.

Inventors, writers, artists—under the old law, income from a project which took less than three years to complete was taxed in the year in which it was received. Income from projects which took three years or more, even though received in one year, could be spread for tax purposes over three back years.

Under the new law, income may be spread over a period of years if the project takes only two years or more to complete. This means income from more such work may be spread, and thus taxed at a lower rate. Writers and artists may spread income over the actual period of work up to 36 months. The time spread for inventors has been increased from 36 to 60 months.

You qualify for this advantage only if 80 per cent or more of the income from the project is received in one year. Otherwise, you pay taxes on the income as it is received year by year.

Sale of Homes
Sale of a home—Profit from sale of a personal residence is taxed unless invested in another home. Even then, the profit is kept in the record. If you later sell the second home, or a third or fourth or fifth, and don't reinvest all your profits in another home, the total profit on all the transactions can be taxed. In figuring your profit, the new law permits you to deduct such selling expenses as real estate commissions and "fixing up" costs—painting and other improvements completed 90 days before the sale, in order to help make the house salable.

Cooperative Housing—If you live in a cooperative housing project, the new law permits you to deduct your share of interest and taxes paid by the cooperative. The old law granted this deduction only to taxpayers living in cooperative apartments.

Business Partners—Partners who meet a complex list of qualifications may choose to pay taxes as a corporation, rather than individual income taxes on their partnership proceeds. This may be a big advantage to partners in top income brackets. But most doctors, lawyers, accountants and engineers are ruled out.

Prepaid Income—Under the old law, if you received a lump-sum payment for use of property or your services over a number of future years, the income was fully taxed in the year it was received. This would apply to rentals, leases, television service contracts, club dues, and so forth. Under the new law, this income may be spread for tax purposes over the years in which the income is actually earned and in which your costs are incurred. In most cases this period cannot exceed five years after receipt of the income.

Best of Everything

This is the quarterly gripe column. Written on one of the louiest days of summer, a perfect background for getting complaints out of the system. It should be warm and balmy; instead it's cold, windy and rainy.

There's one of those exciting Floater Insurance policies in front of me, with the reminder that it has expired and a "please remit"—in husky figures.

Also make a new list of what you've got that might be stolen, from a stickpin to the lawn roller, and where do you keep them? How do I know; couldn't find half of them if I had to.

To find out how you're insured, send for an astronomer, an auctioneer and a burglar. The astronomer, with telescope, will translate the fine print—maybe. The auctioneer will guess what your junk would bring at forced sale and the burglar can furnish a reasonable notion as to what's worth stealing.

YOU'LL BE SURPRISED how much you've got that nobody would want, except the Salvation Army. But just the same you put down box car figure values.

When you add 'em up you've kidded yourself into owing the insurance company so much that you might better swap places with the burglar.

How glorious 't would be if the companies would hire a newspaper rewrite wizard to set down in the English language what you've got to do to win, and send it along with the bill. Much more painless extraction.

IT'S TOO BAD too that radio and TV announcers don't have something like a casting spinner. They can't pull back the bulls that they toss into the ether. But you'd think by now that all of them would be acquainted with every synonym for "sweat" with all of the body deodorants on the air.

Yet the "bull of the week" still is some accidental character

AND A LOT of the times that the airways sing George M. Cohan's "Grand Old Flag," George must turn over in his grave.

When the famous Yankee Doodle boy wrote it he meant no harm but raised a sizable furor because of one careless word in the chorus. He recalled the first printing, apologized to the flag that he loved and changed the word in the ultimate millions of copies that thrilled America pre-World War I.

Still to this day the line sometimes gets on the air: "You're a grand old flag, a high flying RAG—"

I DON'T KNOW WHY I complain; I don't have to wear out TV tubes looking at the "Best of This and That," the reruns. Not only that, they don't always admit it.

You sit there in a T shirt, under an electric fan, lapping up a Tom Collins, and a bird on the screen wishes you "Merry Christmas." Then you remember that you met the guy six months ago.

So you turn to another channel, where the best of something else is holding the fort. It's swell work, if you can get away with it, though it's headed for the fate of the home movie; those family pictures that you forced on callers so many times that you don't have any callers any more.

I WROTE to my syndicate suggesting a six weeks vacation while the papers reran "The Best of Tripp."

A fresh punk in the office wrote back: "We've been through the files and can't find six of anything like you mention."

So I started looking. After three days search the deadline arrived. A masterpiece had to go in the mail that night. I conceded the punk might be right, sat down and wrote this one. It ain't "the best," but it ain't cheating.

As I said, it's swell work if you can get away with it. Anyway, the rain just stopped and the sun is shining—which is the Best of Everything.

Threat to Thrift?

Detroit (AP)—Robert C. Gilmore, Jr., president of the National Association of Life Underwriters, told a Detroit audience that broadening of social security would threaten America's thrift habit. He said: "If we remove the incentive to work and save and build an estate, if we keep pyramiding government benefits for everyone, we will one day eliminate the need for savings banks, building and loan association, life insurance and securities of all kinds."

North's response of three no-trump in today's hand showed 16 or 17 points in high cards, balanced distribution, and a stopper in each of the unbid suits. Since South had 15 points in high cards, he knew that the combined count was at least 31 points. Since South also had good distribution, he decided to go for a slam in spades.

Only a good player should bid a slam of this kind, since excellent play is required to bring the contract home. In this case, South was Sam Gold, the famous Montreal expert, so that fine play could be taken for granted.

West opened the ace of diamonds, and Sam considered his resources. The average player would probably draw trumps and take a club finesse, and he would wind up losing something like two clubs and a heart. A good player might succeed in eking out 11 tricks, but it takes truly expert play to bring in the 12 tricks needed for the slam.

He continued the process by ruffing a diamond with the king of spades and getting back to dummy by overtaking the ten of spades with dummy's jack. This enabled him to ruff dummy's last diamond with the ace of trumps.

With no more trumps in his hand, Sam led a heart to dummy's king and drew West's last trump with dummy's nine, throwing a club from his hand at the same time. He next took the top hearts, discovering that East had started with four cards in that suit.

Not a bit daunted by the failure of the hearts to break, Gold led his last heart and allowed East to win the trick. East's last two cards were clubs, and he therefore had to return that suit, giving dummy a free finesse. In bridge play, South had made his slam contract by a dummy reversal combined with an end-play.

Leaves From Boyle's Notebook

By HAL BOYLE

New York (AP)—Some people believe Edward J. Touhey Jr., ought to get the Medal of Honor.

But the U. S. Army, when it gave big Ed his goodby papers, stamped the word "undesirable" on them. This still grieves Touhey. He doesn't like being regarded as an undesirable hero.

"Either the army should take me back into the service, or give me an honorable discharge," he said.

The point at issue is whether Touhey was right or wrong in knocking down eight Russian soldiers in Vienna five years ago.

"They say I caused an international incident," he said. "But I say the Russians started it. They got no right to national incident," remarked push a man around and call him a spy. They got what they deserved."

The 6-foot-1 former military policeman now weighs 350, and he feels sad in every pound. But he was a mere 240-pound broth of a boy, not quite 20 when the event happened that ruined his military career.

Drank Too Fast, He Says
"I never got to tell my side of the story at the time," he complained. Here is his version:

"I had spent a month in the hospital with athlete's foot. When I got out I stopped at a bar. I drank a bottle of cognac—maybe more."

"I must have drunk it too fast because when I left the bar to go to the barracks I got on the wrong streetcar and fell asleep. When I woke up I saw I was in the international zone and got off."

"I was feeling bad and leaned against the wall of the Imperial Hotel, holding my stomach. It was a Russian hotel. A Russian officer and two armed sentries came out and made me go into the hotel. The officer called me a spy and said I had been taking pictures of Soviet personnel. Then they stood me against a wall and forcibly searched me. They were pretty rough."

Blamed for Camera
"The Russian officer said he still thought I was a spy, even though he saw I didn't have any camera. He said I must have handed the camera to someone passing by."

Then he said he was going to turn me over to the American military police. I got scared. I thought it was a trick—that he would take me to the Russian zone, and I'd never get back.

"I made a bee-line for the door. A sentry put his bayonet to my stomach. I knocked it away, and the Russian officer grabbed me from behind. That's when I went berserk. I saw red."

Mowed Them Down
Touhey turned and kneed the officer, who cried out, and then Russian soldiers poured in from every side. Working with both fists and an iron chair, Touhey mowed them down. They overwhelmed him once, but he broke free and crashed through a plate glass door before another wave of Russian reinforcements finally grounded him.

"They stabbed me in the arm, broke three of my ribs, put a 3-inch gash in my head, and kicked out four of my teeth," Touhey recalled. "They also spit in my face and called me a capitalist dog."

International Military Police, attracted by the uproar, then came into the hotel and broke up the struggle.

"The Russians put the whole blame on me," Touhey recalled sorrowfully. "They said I'd

'Gopher' Party Held For Scout Helpers

The first annual "Gopher" banquet was held Thursday night at Camp Tri-Mount, the Rip Van Winkle Council Boy Scout Camp, recognizing the men who during the past year have put in 15 or more hours of work on the camp facilities.

Presiding at the banquet was the Council Camp Committee Chairman, Frank Bourke of Kingston. Council President Raymond S. Quackenbush of Saugerties was the guest speaker.

The following men were recognized and presented with hand printed "Gopher" certificates:

Irving Benjamin, Merrill Robinson, George Rott and George Louckes, all of East Jewett; Donald Krom, John V. Kemble, Jr. and John V. Kemble, Sr.; Hurley, Thomas Snow, Windham; Ray C. Reifeiss, Joseph Gysels, Millard Noel, Coxackie; Johan A. Aalto, Ashokan; Herbert Bell, Milton; Francis W. Teel, Saugerties; Frank La Velle, Palenville; Sidney D. Haas, New Paltz; Walter T. Tremper, Henry P. Eighmey, Ralph Shapiro, Joseph Shapiro, George B. Matthews and Richard Waltman, Kingston.

Renovations Made
Through the efforts of these men and many others who did not have 15 hours of work many new and improved facilities have been used at camp this summer and will be used during weekend camping throughout the fall, winter and spring seasons. Two cabins housing eight persons each were renovated and winterized; the camp office building and camp store were renovated; a new dock at the waterfront was built with materials purchased by the Kingston Lions Club; five new latrine buildings were built; a new front was placed on the spring house and a new Nature Lodge has been started.

A series of weekend work parties is planned for this fall to complete the Nature Lodge fractured a colonel's skull and broken two guys' jaws."

Would Do It Again
Ed admits he made one serious error on that fateful morning.

"I shouldn't have drunk that cognac so fast," he said. "But I didn't start any trouble with the Russians. They did. And if I was in the same situation again, I'd do the same thing. The Russians are no good."

"When I was in the hospital later, one of our generals visited me and said, 'as an officer I have to bowl you out, but as a man I'd like to shake your hand.'"

But Touhey, unemployed since he was laid off by a Steel Mill recently, believes the army ought to take him back—or give him an honorable discharge.

"In three years with the army I never went AWOL once," he said. "I understand they even were considering giving me a good conduct ribbon at the time this whole thing happened."

Giant Rockies Defeat Jersey Cardinals at Deitz Stadium, 4-2

Giant Farmhands Score Win on Only Two Hits

Pitching Prospect Fans 11 Batters

Although limited to two hits, the New York Giant Rockies defeated the Jersey City Colored Cardinals, 4 to 2, before 200 fans Saturday night at Dietz Stadium.

Hermie West, a fine looking Giant prospect, held the Cardinals to five hits, walked two and struck out 11.

Willie Butte, the Cardinal finger, walked seven and was harassed by four costly errors.

Pinch Hitters Fall

The Cardinals sent three pinch hitters against West in the ninth but failed to score. One doubled, another lined out and West fanned the third.

Moore, a pinch hitter for the Cards, had the only extra base blow of the game. Thomas stroked two singles for the losers.

The next major baseball attraction at Dietz Stadium is scheduled Saturday, Aug. 21, when the City League All Stars meet the top road attraction of the day—the Georgia Chain Gang.

Toski's 14-Under-Par 274 Cops $100,000 Title

Chicago, Aug. 16 (AP)—On a course where par meant nothing, Bob Toski used one yesterday to win the equivalent of $100,000. His final round of 72—put together in probably the weirdest fashion in tournament history—gave the splinter of a pro the "world" title at Tam O'Shanter and $50,000 in cash plus an exhibition contract worth just as much.

The 127-pounder, slim as a rodeo cowboy and at 27 the youngest player ever to cash in at Tam, settled for a 72-hole score of 274. This was 14 strokes under par and was hemstitched with brilliant rounds of 67-65-70 and the finale of par 72.

Earl Stewart Second

By one stroke, he beat out Earl Stewart, Jr., the money-hungry 54-hole leader from Dallas, who blew to a closing 74, and Jack Burke, Jr., also a Texan, who did the last 18 in a believable 69.

Each of the runners-up, who locked with 275, collected $7,500 as shares of a $150,000 purse distribution.

The wiry Toski, registering from Livingston, N. J., started out the last round with birdies on four of the first five holes. Then suddenly, the roof fell in with a triple bogey 7.

Toski parred the next three for a 35 against standard 36 for the front nine.

After salvaging a par five on the long 64th from a trap, Toski bogied four holes in a row by wandering into sand and missing short putts.

At this time—68 holes—he totalled 237, Stewart 236, and Burke 240 with a front nine of 34.

While Stewart went for a birdie 4 on the 5-5-yard 69th, Burke drove out of bounds and took a 6. Toski hit a perfect drive, stuck a No. 4 wood 12 feet from the cup and holed the putt for an eagle 3. This tied him with Burke at 264, while Stewart jockeyed ahead with 262.

On the 215-yard 70th, Stewart overshot the green, stubbed a chip shot and finally took a 5. Burke and Toski parred in 3's. Stewart, who was behind the other two, parred the 71st and also took a 4 on the 72nd after failing to sink a 13 foot putt for a birdie three and took 275.

Burke and Toski each took 4 on the 71st.

On the final hole Burke parred with 4, two-putting from 20 feet. Toski planted his approach eight feet from the pin. He rrammed in the putt for a birdie 3—and it was all over.

Other "world" champions crowned were:

Women pros—(worth $5,000)—Patty Berg with a six-under-par 298, three strokes ahead of Louise Suggs.

Women amateurs—Mickey Wright of San Diego with 309, two ahead of defending champion "Wiffi" Smith.

Men amateurs—Frank Stranahan, for the fifth straight time, with 284, one stroke ahead of Arnold Palmer of Cleveland.

Ernie Schirmer, the large Saugerties barrister once renowned for his gargantuan appetite, but now of the slim belt line, must be laughing up his spacious sleeve at this writer and Little League "experts" in the area.

For weeks, the big guy shed large crocodile tears about the lack of talent in the Saugerties Little League. And chased everyone else who would listen straight to the wailing wall.

"We don't have a thing," he lamented, and in the next breath you expected him to say it would be a baseball calamity to have the All Star squad exposed to the annual District 4 tournament in Kingston.

Bob Umpleby, the father of Little League baseball in Ulster county, was so moved by Schirmer's lachrymal lyrics that he insisted we accompany him to Saugerties for a first hand looksee.

Eventually the trip to Saugerties' beautiful Little League stadium was accomplished. What we saw was not overly impressive, just an average, spirited Little League ball game. The Saugerties kids looked no better, no worse than thousands across the country.

But the barrister continued to paint a dire picture of Saugerties' chances in the District 4 tournament. The Kingston delegation fell for the line like a hungry black bass.

The rest is now Little League history. Saugerties produced the fightingest team in the tournament. It captured the sub-District and, but for a couple of bad breaks would have taken it all. They showed two courageous little pitchers in Terry Craft and Bill Clements. They could bounce back from adversity. In short, they were terrific.

Attorney Schirmer? A nice fellow, too, real sportsman and athlete. But, if ever again he tears about Saugerties LL baseball, we know a lot of guys who are taking to the hills.

Flotsam and Jetsam:

This year's Little League World Series final, Aug. 27, will be handled in strictly big-time fashion, as usual, with an added touch of class on the broadcasting and televising supplied by Mel Allen. The Voice of the New York Yankees will do play-by-play of the final over a radio network and also supply the commentary for the filmed version which will be shown Sunday afternoon for the nation's TV sets. Williamsport, Pa., is pulling itself together for the jam of baseball people from all parts of the country at series time. The grapevine reports one of the local Hudson Valley League bowling squads will drop a prominent strike artist. Jones Darryl's prowess is expected to go along with the same roster of Johnny Ferraro, Harold Broskie, Charles Manfro, Larry Weishaup and Richard Howard. On alleys 7 and 8 at the Bowldrome, OF COURSE. Last year's Schryver Lumber team will roll under the sponsorship of Forst's Formost and will shift from the Central Recs to 5 and 6 at the Bowldrome.

Of Men and Mice:

Steve Savel of Schenectady shot a brilliant 3-under-par 70 on the luxurious Williamstown, Mass., layout to win Monday's Pro-Senior. Alex Gerlak's 2-over-75 was good for sixth place. Harry Hohnhorst, the Woodstock artist who paints the Freeman hole-in-one posters every year, is designing the pennant for the winning team in the Catskill Mountain Golf League (Wiltwyck). It will portray Old Rip swinging a club (a wedge, no doubt) in the background. Maybe, after last week's decisive eagle-2 on Woodstock's No. 2 hole, Bob Daley, the Wiltwyck captain, should be the model. Three fast reasons why the Dodgers can't make it this year—Don Newcombe, Roy Campanella and Billy Loes. The 24-year-old Greek should have moved into the top ranks this year. But by now Walter Alston knows that a guy depending on Billy Loes to win a pennant places himself in the same situation as a boss player waiting for a winner at the track so his family can eat.

That line pretty well describes the plight of the Dodgers, come to think of it.

Storm Kills One And Injures 11

Okinawa, Aug. 16 (AP)—A howling Pacific typhoon which raked this U. S. island fortress with winds of 150 miles an hour yesterday left one person dead and 11 injured, the U. S. Army announced today.

One Japanese drowned. All of the injured were Americans, but only three were hurt seriously enough to require hospitalization, the army said.

Winds of 60 miles an hour and heavy rains are still pounding the island and all residents are still in typhoon-proof shelters.

A number of unoccupied guest huts were destroyed, some roofs were ripped off and communication lines were cut, the army said.

The typhoon is moving toward South Korea and is expected to hit tomorrow night. Weather experts said the storm has lost much of its violence and no heavily populated areas lie in its path.

A second typhoon is approaching Japan and winds of 60 miles an hour are forecast for the Tokyo area tomorrow evening. No serious damage is expected.

Woman Is Rescued From Sewer Drain

New York, Aug. 16 (AP)—A woman was in Bellevue Hospital psychiatric ward today after being rescued from the East river where she spent seven hours perched in terror inside a sewer pipe.

Police said she jumped into the river shortly after midnight Saturday but quickly thought better of her suicide plans and scrambled into the drain, exposed to the low tide. Unable to climb the high bulkhead along the waterfront, she stayed in her perch through the night.

When the tide started coming in early yesterday morning, she started screaming. Her cries were heard by a tugboat crew and city firemen at a nearby station and they made the rescue.

Police said the woman told them she had spent a small fortune in urging people of this city to legalize Sunday movies.

It is amazing how this same industry is struggling for survival today....

DeWitt Accepts League Position

Deweese W. DeWitt, executive secretary and treasurer of the Home Seekers' Savings and Loan Association, has accepted the assignment from the Savings Association League of New York State to serve as an advisor on the League's Publications' Program.

The League publishes a monthly magazine called, "Savings Association News." It is hoped to get opinions from the experts in the business as to reactions to the types of material published and suggestions about topics to be covered in future issues.

In addition, it is expected that each advisor will develop one article sometime during the year on a subject which he feels deserves feature space in the "News."

New Jersey Minister Blames Movies and Ball

Philadelphia, Aug. 16 (AP)—A New Jersey minister has tied in the legalizing of Sunday movies and baseball in Philadelphia with economic plights within those industries.

"Nobody ever wins a war against God and his eternal truth," the Rev. Samuel A. Jeanes, pastor of the First Baptist Church of Merchantville, N. J., said in a sermon at the Patterson Memorial Presbyterian Church here yesterday.

The pastor, general secretary of the Lord's Day Alliance of New Jersey, said:

"Your Philadelphia baseball organization is now looking for somebody to buy them out because of their difficult financial problems and because of their declining attendance. It was not too many years ago that this organization played no small part in breaking down the sanctity of the Lord's day by having the city of Philadelphia legalize Sunday baseball."

"Not too many years have passed since the motion picture organizations put forth a tremendous effort spending a small fortune in urging people of this city to legalize Sunday movies. It is amazing how this same industry is struggling for survival today...."

New York, Aug. 16 (AP)—The stock market climbed today with oils in the forefront. Volume was moderately heavy.

Railroads, utilities, steels and copper mining issues followed the oils to higher ground. Motors, aircrafts and chemicals were irregular while airlines and some distillers eased.

Trading started extremely fast and for several minutes the high speed ticker tape was unable to keep up with the heavy volume. But the tape soon cleared and a more selective tone prevailed into the afternoon.

American Airlines, whose pilots have been striking for the past two weeks, opened off 1/4 at 14 1/2 on 3,000 shares and continued depressed, unsettling other airlines. Also affected by a strike, Goodyear Tire was able to post a sharp increase as the company called its $5 preferred for redemption.

Quotations by Morgan Davis & Co., members of the New York Stock Exchange, 63 Wall Street, New York city; branch office 41 John street, R. B. Osterhoudt, manager.

believed to have let some people buck their fair share of taxes. The measure also extends the present 52 per cent corporation income tax rate for one more year, to bring in an estimated $1,200,000,000. The rate was scheduled to drop to 47 per cent last April 1, but can be extended retroactively.

One change affects all individual taxpayers: April 15—instead of the traditional March 15—is set as the deadline for filing income tax returns.

Most of the new benefits go into effect for the year which began last Jan. 1 and will show up in tax returns due next April 15.

Lower Premium

in Class 2 who use their car for business.

Under the new plan, motorists presently in Class 1 will be divided into three groups, as follows:

Class 1A, motorists 25 years of age or over who use their cars solely for pleasure and do not have any youthful operators in the family; Class 1B, motorists who drive less than 10 miles to or from work; and Class 1C, motorists who drive 10 or more miles to and from work.

Will Divide Groups

Class 2 motorists will be divided into the following three groups: Class 2A, motorists 25 years of age or over who have youthful operators in their families who occasionally use their cars and married motorists under 25 years of age who have children; Class 2B, young married motorists without children who own the car or who are the principal operators of the car; and Class 2C, youthful unmarried owners or principal operators.

Owners 25 years of age or over who use their cars in business will continue as one class to be known as Class 3.

Motorists in Classes 1A and 2A will receive a reduction in their premiums, those in Class 3 will pay approximately the same rate as now, and those in the four other classes will pay higher rates. Superintendent Bohlinger's announcement stated.

Preferred Risk

Companies will continue to use the preferred risk rating plan which requires motorists who have accidents to pay higher rates than accident-free drivers.

The present two classes for farmers have been expanded to four, with the change said to benefit the majority of farmers. The rating plan will be put into effect on Sept. 1 by member and subscriber companies of the National Bureau of Casualty Underwriters and the Mutual Insurance Rating Bureau.

According to Superintendent Bohlinger, it is designed to provide a "more equitable distribution" of the cost of automobile accident claims among the various groups of drivers.

Three Are Appointed

Allan L. Hanstein, director of Ulster Kingston Civil Defense Council today announced three appointments to the council's staff effective Aug. 1. Those appointed were Stephen G. Hyatt, 10 Harwich street, chief of school section; Albert Kurtz, 190 Tremper avenue, supply officer; and Boyd P. Miller, 72 Madison avenue, chief radiological officer.

Savage Pleads Guilty

James Savage, 31, of Corona, L. I., who was arrested after his automobile and two others were involved in a collision on the Rondout Creek Bridge on Saturday morning, pleaded guilty to a charge of driving without a license and was fined $25 by Justice of the Peace Francis E. Palen, Jr., of the town of Esopus.
